Black Suffrage in Pennsylvania.

An article in the Honesdale (Pa.) Republic, written by [illegible] gives so clear an account of the history and present bearings of this subject, that we reproduce it in full.

In 1682 William Penn promulgated "The Frame of Government" of Pennsylvania, under authority of the charter granted him by King Charles II. In this document the right of suffrage is given, without restriction, to "the freemen of said province."

In 1701 Penn granted what is known as the "Charter of privileges." By this instrument the right of suffrage was broadly given to "the freemen of each respective county."

The first constitution of Pennsylvania was adopted in 1776. The convention that framed this instrument was presided over by Benjamin Franklin. It gave the right of suffrage to "every freeman of the full age of 21 years." The men of the Revolution while asserting their own rights and liberties against proscription, were careful to stand fast by the cardinal idea of the political equality of all men.

In 1790 a new constitution was framed. Thomas Mifflin presided over the convention that made it. This instrument gave the right to vote to "every freeman over the age of 21 years."

In 1838 this constitution was revised. John Sherman presided over the convention. The basis of suffrage was changed so as to include only every white freeman of the age of 21 years."

For one hundred and fifty six years black men, of black there were, voted in Pennsylvania on precisely the same conditions as white men. None of the evils now predicted of black suffrage were experienced. Neither the social nor social equality of the two races was thereby established. Amalgamation neither through matrimony or without, was not encouraged. No a black man was made Governor or Judge, member of the Council or the Legislature. Social order was not subverted. The Government was not by white men, for white men, but by all men, for the benefit of all.

In 1838 this democratic basis of government was overthrown, and the right of suffrage restricted to white folks. That the State has been governed any better since then no intelligent man will peril his reputation by asserting.

The constitution of 1838 had been changed several times by special amendments, but in the main is still in force. Five years must elapse after one amendment before another can be proposed.

Amendments must be proposed by majorities in both branches of two successive Legislatures, and then be submitted for ratification to a vote of the people. As the amendment authorizing soldiers to vote in the field was adopted in 1864, four years more must pass before another amendment can be proposed in the Legislature, and six years before an amendment can be submitted to a vote of the people.

What may happen in six years the keenest human sagacity cannot foresee. It is hardly worth while for people to perplex themselves now as to how they will vote on any question, at so distant a period. "Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof." A large part of the present voters of the State will either be dead or removed to some other commonwealth prior to the year of grace 1871.

The policy or rightfulness of insisting on the introduction of black suffrage into the States recently in revolt, raises a different question, and one which is immediate. If the people in the Northern States are to take any part in the solution of that problem, or if the General Government is to act directly in solving it, measures to that end must be taken without delay. So soon as the States lately in rebellion shall have been restored to their former position as members of the Union, the right of Congress to regulate and control the basis of suffrage therein will have expired. No Congress can justly dictate the terms on which those States may be restored to their former status. After their restoration this body will cease to have any discretion over the qualifications of their voters.

If the right to vote is an inherent natural right, then it is an inalienable one, and its denial involves oppression and injustice. Then no conditions whatever can be properly attached to its exercise, except of actual existence and established residence.

If suffrage is a conventional right, like the right of holding office or contracting marriage, then it may be given or withheld, according as prudence shall dictate, and on such conditions as shall seem most likely to conduce to its salutary use. On this hypothesis, it is fitting to take into the account the convenience and welfare of the white population, what is best for the present and ultimate good and advancement of this portion of community. But it would be a great wrong to discard all consideration of the happiness and prosperity of the black people. In some of the States they are a majority of the inhabitants. The destiny of their white neighbors is bound up in their destiny. They have shown, all through the war, an intelligent comprehension of the nature and tendency of the revolt, have been unquestionably loyal, have not been prevailed upon, by threatenings or blandishments, to take the part of their masters, have exhibited a self poise, a moderation, an independence, under perplexing and perilous circumstances, indicative of nobleness of character, have constantly ministered to the sustenance and escape of Union prisoners of war, and have exhibited a heroism on battle fields which has elicited the highest praise from the ablest Union commanders.

That there are two sides to this question, under this aspect, we not only admit, but assert. We are not only content, but anxious to have it discussed fully and in all its bearings. But we have neither respect nor patience with men who propose to settle it by appeals to passion or prejudice. Such men put into the jury box would hardly fail to consent to a verdict through sinister or corrupt motives or placed on the bench as judges, to take bribes for their opinions. The whole question ought to be carefully weighed, and the highest good of all races in all the States, ought to turn the scale.

LAMARTINE'S EFFUSION.—The famous political mendicant, whose begging petitions had come to be disregarded in this country, has taken his revenge in lampooning us and transferring, by the power of his pen, our Mexican neighbor into the hands of Louis Napoleon. The article in which all this is done is a most amusing affair on account of its extravagant egotism and ridiculous [illegible] Its argument is nothing but a wretched piece of Frenchy sentimentality, of which no sensible man can make head or tail. The main idea is that "America belongs to Europe" and "France takes the initiative," and we might add "Lamartine the greatest failure that ever set up for a statesman, points out the way."

But the richest part of this article is his abuse of this country. He condenses his spite into the following description of our people:

"The art of being disagreeable is their second nature. To be willing to please is a symptom of [illegible]. They love no one, no one loves them. It is the exception of egotists. History presents no parallel of such a physiognomy: [illegible] coldness, [illegible] of [illegible] the [illegible] of gestures [illegible] of tobacco in the mouth, spit box under the [illegible] legs perched against the chimney jambs or stretched out upon themselves without regard to [illegible] of which man owes to man, an accent [illegible] famous, imperious, a disdainful air [illegible] print on every feature: this is the picture of one of these autocrats of [illegible]"

This is but a small portion of this sort of stuff which is too nonsensical for further notice. It can hurt nobody except its author.

JEFF. DAVIS.—A Fortress Monroe letter to a New York paper says that Jeff Davis is fast becoming convinced of his rapidly diminishing consequence, and that his manner has softened down very materially. On being asked what he thought of the President's late message he is reported to have said: "It is wisely so." [illegible] specific upon every subject but [illegible] single one concerning the [illegible] Davis is stated to be in good health and to [illegible] believes that the agitation of the Monroe doctrine will cause a war with France, when, as he is represented to have said, bullets will be in greater demand for the next few years than during the past four years. Clement C. Clay chafes under his imprisonment, but is in good health.

DESERTED WAGONS.—Parties just in at Walla Walla, inform us that the Statesman, that the road to Boise is [illegible] with deserted wagons. Teamsters when overtaken by the storm, cut loose their animals and fled for safety. Much of the stock on the road is in poor condition, and very many of the teamsters will lose their entire teams.

LETTER FROM MRS. LINCOLN.—Mr. Carpenter, the artist, who has been publishing in the Independent his personal recollections of President Lincoln, gives in his last contribution the following extract of a letter from Mrs. Lincoln:

"Truly," writes Mrs. Lincoln, "no sorrow has been like unto mine. I am as broken hearted over this overwhelming affliction as when the terrible tragedy first occurred, and, of course, realize it far more. I have lost the most loving and devoted of husbands, and my dear boys the best father that sons were ever blessed with. 'Until God's love shall place me by his side again,' I shall know no peace or alleviation of my grief. Knowing him as you did, I am sure you can pardon and appreciate a wife's great sorrow over so untimely a loss!

* * * * * * * *

"How I wish I could have been with my dear husband the last three weeks of his life. Having a realizing sense that the unnatural rebellion was near its close, and being most of the time away from Washington, where he had passed through such conflicts of mind during the last four years—feeling so encouraged, he freely gave vent to his cheerfulness. Down the Potomac, he was almost boyish in his mirth, and reminded me of his original nature, as I remembered him in our own home, free from care, surrounded by those he loved.

"That terrible Friday, I never saw him so supremely cheerful. His manner was even playful. At three o'clock he drove out with me in the open carriage. In starting, I asked him if any one should accompany us? He immediately replied: 'No, I prefer to ride by ourselves to-day.' During the drive he was so gay that I said to him, laughingly: 'Dear husband, you almost startle me by your great cheerfulness.' He replied, 'And well may I feel so, Mary, for I consider this day the war has come to a close,' and then added, 'We must both be more cheerful in the future. Between the war and the loss of our darling Willie we have been very miserable.' Every word he then uttered is deeply engraved on my poor, broken heart. In the evening his mind was fixed upon having some relaxation. * * * I firmly believe that if he had remained in the White House, on that night of darkness, when the fiends prevailed, he would have been horribly cut to pieces. Those fiends had too long contemplated this inhuman murder to have allowed him to escape."

CALCULATIONS OF SOUTHERN POLITICIANS.—"Agath" of the Cincinnati Gazette, asked some of the Georgia politicians why they so confidentially counted President Johnson on their side, and this was the answer:

"We think him on our side because of what he has done, and what we know him to be. Last spring you can form no conception of the utter abject humiliation of the Southern people. We were all prostrate, helpless and abased to the dust, but out of this abject condition Mr. Johnson has partially lifted us. He has made us feel that we have some standing ground, some chance still to battle for our rights, and for this, there has now sprung up throughout the whole South a warm feeling of regard and gratitude. Johnson knows this. He knows that if he continues in this way, he will be able in 1868 to count on the South as a unit for his re-election. There would be no thought of contest, he would be nominated by acclamation. Now, he is a man of strong will and boundless ambition. Of course he wants to be re-elected. He doesn't want to quit the stage as an accidental President. And he knows perfectly well that, with the South as a unit at his back, his enormous patronage will enable him to carry New York and Pennsylvania, and defy the whole black republican pack. Those States will be enough to elect him, and a blind man could see the game, and Andy Johnson has got plenty of nerve to play it."

THE LONDON TIMES WILLING TO GIVE UP CANADA.—The London Times indulges in a friendly editorial towards America.

Appropos of Secretary Seward's reply to the Lincoln condolence address, after lauding the efficiency of the United States Government in times of great and unparalleled difficulties, the Times says a word or two about the present feeling in England towards the United States. "We have not the least objection to the United States increasing to any extent, and annexing any amount of territory or number of States, so long as it is done honestly, above board, and by fair appeals to the sympathy and good sense of the people. If the population of our own provinces, or of Mexico, freely and spontaneously declared that they thought this their best chance of peace and prosperity, the British people would only feel the most passing regret at the loss of a name and the proportionate aggrandizement of the United States. Only as a great State we cannot bear to be ousted, outwitted and coerced, and to see our own people suffer for their loyalty."

"Civilized" Cruelty

Recent advices from Jamaica not only corroborate all that has been said about the horrible cruelties and inhuman massacres perpetrated by the British authorities after the rebellion in the island had been quelled but also show that in the recital of these hideous atrocities, the half had not been told. The London Weekly Times has information from Jamaica to the effect that no fewer than two thousand negroes have been shot or hanged. The road from Long Bay to Manchioneal bay, a distance of eight miles, was so strewed with the dead as to render it impassable. "In a single parish 1,050 negroes have been executed." All who were captured were either put to death, or flogged most frightfully. The wounded were eated the same as others. These monstrous cruelties are but a repetition of the scenes which were enacted in India a few years ago. They are sufficient, as is said in Hamlet, "to make the face of Heaven glow with horror and indignation." Yet this is the England which boasts of her devotion to humanity, and which for years has been declaiming with the full exuberance of indignant rhetoric against the conduct of the United States in suppressing a rebellion, at the close of which not a single person was punished, except some half dozen who were proven guilty of actual murder.

The dreadful acts which have thus been perpetrated by the British authorities of the island, far surpass in their unnatural cruelty, and hideous enormity, anything of which the rebellious negroes themselves had been guilty. Any one who wishes to find a similar picture may see it in the pages of Burke, where he gives an account of the fiendish cruelties practiced in the last century upon the natives of India by the British. The details of this account, horrifying though they are, are scarcely worse than a recital of the recent deeds of the officials of Jamaica. The atrocities of Debi Sing, the instrument whom Hastings chose to wreak his inhuman vengeance upon the people he oppressed, are more than equaled by the excesses committed by the English in Jamaica, even after all opposition to their tyrannical authority had closed.

The London Weekly Times of the 9th of December, contains some remarks upon the origin of the outbreak in Jamaica, and attributes it to its proper cause. We quote:

The evils of Jamaica have arisen, as the most flagrant evils in communities generally do arise, from the creation of a pampered aristocratic class, artificially invested with far more than their fair share of political power, and abusing it as privileged classes always do. While they were slaveholders they demoralized the blacks by the hideous atrocities of slavery, and when emancipation came they exerted themselves to make it worth as little as possible to their liberated thralls. We are not surprised to learn from Dr. Underhill that the blacks with whom they come most in contact are the most dissolute in the island. Licentious power, exerted for selfish ends, always does demoralize both those who use it and those who suffer under it, and although Jamaica is a long way off and only indirectly connected with English political interests, we may expect that if the Cabinet is urged on by true Liberals to do justice to the unfortunate black laboring class, the Tories will vigorously defend the planters' party against the most righteous assaults.

The political inequality of English society is a canker that eats into its integrity and manhood. We see this conspicuously displayed in the view which too many of the politically privileged class se take of the Jamaica massacres. The laboring classes of England may depend upon it that those in this country who are so eager to back up Governor Eyre and the Jamaica planters, whose tool he has been, would treat them quite as badly if they had the power. The United States of America has shown us how grandly a self-ruled people can go through a period of extreme trial, and the little island of Jamaica, in which the industrial class are almost excluded from political power, affords a counter illustration of the tremendous evils and sanguinary crimes that flow directly from gross political inequality as their corrupting source. In America, where the suffrage is almost universal, a gigantic war is conducted to a triumphant termination, not stained by any cruelty on the conquering side. Mr. Thomas Hughes, the member for Lambeth, well observed at the dinner just given to him, that "he was proud that a nation sprung from us, and allied to us as the United States were, speaking our language, should conclude the greatest civil war probably that had ever been fought in the world, in the noble manner they had done—by saying, 'Gentlemen, come back to us; we have no revenge to take.'" A hundredfold more revenge was taken in a few days in Jamaica than in five years of American civil war as conducted by the free community of the North. Why was this? Because the Federal States were a free community, and the Jamaica constitution belonged to the worst sort of aristocratic tyrannies—that in which representation was a sham. In the political equality of the Federal States we see the cause not only of their success, but of the kind and moderate spirit they have evinced towards their rebellious enemies, while the ferocity and bloodshed of which Jamaica has been the unhappy scene, is clearly traceable to the demoralization that gross political inequality invariably produces.

The Hon. E. L. Stanley, son of Lord Stanley of Alderley, has illustrated this question. He says that "the superior race in Jamaica had done all in its power to keep down the negroes." It is the old story of a bad sort of employer, doing all in his power to keep down his laborers. Mr. Stanley added that "the Established Church, which was the Church of the white planters and a very insignificant minority of the negroes, annually spent nearly 30,000*l*. a year. This small island maintained not many schoolmasters but it maintained a bishop, three archdeacons, and rectors in all the parishes. He did not say that it was not an excellent thing that religion should be taught to the poor people, but he must say he should like to have seen a little more done for education in which all the negroes would have been benefitted and a little less for the Established Church, which the majority of the negroes shrank from." Scandalous political inequality led to more scandalous social distinctions. There was a small mischievous aristocracy robbing, cheating and ill treating a numerous unrepresented mass of laborers, and hanging and shooting them when in sale the moment a pretext for such atrocities could be obtained.

THE COAST SURVEY.—The report of the Superintendent of the Coast Survey shows that the work of that Bureau on this coast is progressing satisfactorily. On the coast of California much has been done. The topography and hydrography of Coos Bay, in this State, has been completed. Triangulation is to be continued in Oregon and Washington Territory, with special soundings in such localities as the public interests may demand. Drawing and engraving of surveys are to be continued, for charts of Coos Bay, Washington Sound, Admiralty Inlet and Puget Sound.

The entire estimates for the above described field and office work on the survey of the Pacific coast amount to $1[illegible]0,000.

JOHN MITCHEL, the Irish American rebel, is in Paris. It turns out that he has got with him $70,000 of the Fenian's money. He is there as an ambassador of that order. What the nature of his mission is no one states but that he is at St Cloud in the capacity of a "minister" is well known. The money he has with him amounts to a pretty good sum and will probably maintain him in Paris until another rebellion or revolution occurs there, when he will of course be found mixed up with the difficulties. He has rebelled against every Government he has lived under, why should he not rebel against that of France?

LETTER FROM NEW YORK

THANKSGIVING DAY,

Despite the lowering weather, was celebrated with due spirit in New York. Sermons of a national character were preached in most of the churches and thanks offered to the [illegible] battles for the [illegible] he has given us over the enemies of the Constitution [illegible] slavery and for the general prosperity which [illegible] and the [illegible] upon us in the past year smile upon us. The feasts were not so full as usual at holiday seasons but there was nearly everywhere hilarity and good cheer. The poor were remembered by those who had the means and hardly a family in the metropolis but had a turkey or chickens or something equally good on Thanksgiving Day.

THE ELECTION

of Tuesday last resulted in the choice of John T. Hoffman the Tammany nominee for Mayor by a small majority over Roberts the Republican candidate. Brooks and Gunther ran so far behind as to be quite out of the race though between them they had about 17,000 votes—about as many as are regularly cast in some of our largest states. Mayor Hoffman forsooth he will soon be, has an excellent reputation as Recorder, or the head of the chief City Courts to which he has been elected the second time by a nearly unanimous vote. He is a good Union man out of what is called "the ring," a corrupt organization which annually steals about one half of the amount with which the tax payers are burthened and will make a conscientious and straightforward Mayor. Of the eight Aldermen elected, the Republicans only secured one, Joseph B. Varnum, Jr., but he is probably the ablest member of the new Board. They, however, elected thirteen of the twenty four councilmen and will of course have the organization of the latter body.

THE FENIANS [illegible]

Among the Fenians here ten of the so called Senators have preferred articles of impeachment against Col. O'Mahony, the President of the Brotherhood, tried and deposed him and placed Col. W. R. Roberts in his stead. They have also deposed Mr Kellan, the Fenian Secretary of the Treasury, and issued an order for the sale at auction of the splendid furniture of the head quarters in Union Square. They charge that O'Mahony has illegally issued some $40,000 worth of bonds of the Irish Republic that Mr. Kellan has never confirmed as the financial agent of the Brotherhood, and that O'Mahony has never properly remunerated a person to fill that office. The Colonel defiantly replies charging the "malcontents," as he calls the Senators, with having been bought by British gold, and refusing them access to the capitol of the Irish Republic (!) He also says that at the meeting of the first Fenian Congress in Philadelphia, it was enacted that the Treasurer should give bonds in the sum of $500,000 for the safe keeping of the money of the Brotherhood. Mr. O'Rourk, foreman of the Tribune pressroom had been Treasurer of the organization to the time of the meeting of the Congress, and was a candidate for appointment. There was some opposition to him on the ground of a lack of educational embellishments, but none touching his character for integrity, and he was reappointed. Subsequent to the adjournment of the Congress, O'Mahony before depositing more moneys with him called upon him to furnish the required security. This he declined to do claiming that the action of the Senate was a mere formality, and that it was not expected that he should furnish security. O'Mahony then declined to place the funds in his hands, and deposited the money in his own name. This created a breach, O'Mahony's friends claiming that he had acted properly, and O'Rourk claiming the same for him. Under the advisement of his friends, O'Rourk refused to pay over, and still has $10,000, awaiting a decision by the Senate.

Following this rapidly came other charges seriously implicating several parties. There is one charge to the effect that the sum of $40,000 was misapplied by parties to influence Congress to appoint officers who would not investigate too closely, or be over ready to expose past shortcomings. Another is, that the sum of $78,000 has been misapplied by a party having control by virtue of his office, of a disposition of a portion of the funds. Another charge is that a sum touching $100,000 has been devoted to the sustenance of a city newspaper, through a trying period of financial difficulty. Another is, that $40,000 has been put to improper uses, and is now beyond recovery. Another is, that those who free Ireland will never be able to put a fin or an between $10,000 and $15,000 of the contributions of the faithful.

On the other hand, the Senators allege that of the contributions, (said to be more than a million of dollars) which the frugal and industrious Irish servant girls in the United States have contributed with the expectation of liberating their native Isle, no insignificant share has been embezzled by the salaried officials who utter their edicts from the headquarters of the Fenian President on Union Square, and that a farther large amount has been wasted in magnificent furniture, which might better have been appropriated to its legitimate use. Altogether the quarrel is a very pretty one, and shows plainly enough the bursting of the bubble of a Fenian uprising. The developements are found to be plentiful and racy. The latest statement is one from John O'Sullivan, late Centre for Muskerry county, Cork Ireland, in favor of O'Mahony, whom he says the Irish in Ireland regard as next to their own head.

GENERAL GRANT AT CHARLESTON

A letter from Charleston giving an account of a dinner given to General Grant, by General Sickles recently, states that the Lieutenant General gave expression to the same sentiments which he has heretofore been credited with uttering at other places during his present journey in regard to the Imperial invasion of Mexico. Now is the favorable time General Grant is reported as saying, for us to drive Maximilian out of Mexico, while we have plenty of veteran soldiers. A number of the leading South Carolinians attended this dinner, among them the rebel ex Governor Magrath, recently released from Fort Pulaski. His attendance excited the indignation of many of the old secessionists who considered his presence on such an occasion and under existing circumstances, as even more humiliating than his pathetic appeal for liberation.

THE VIRGINIA LEGISLATURE

Has decided that devotion to the rebel cause during the war is to be the measure of merit, and they have therefore resolved to oust the Unionists holding office under appointment from Governor Pierpont, and appointed next Tuesday for electing secession successors to them. They have also adopted an amendment to their State constitution which not only does way with all disabilities for holding office on account of participation in the rebellion, but does not even require the oath of allegiance to the national government to be taken. A joint committee has been appointed by the two houses to confer with the military authorities and urge the immediate removal of the national troops from the State, one member remarking, during the discussion over the matter that he thought they "had trod led to the government long enough."

GOLD IN MINNESOTA

Professor R. M. Eames a practical geologist has discovered that the rocky hills in the vicinity of Vermillion lake Minnesota, are traversed by numerous quartz veins ranging in width from an inch to six feet. These exhibit crystals of iron and copper pyrites. Assays of the quartz by Professor Kent, of this city gives $[illegible] in gold to the ton and the specimens assayed by Professor Eckfeldt U. S. assayer at the Philadelphia Mint give $25.03 in gold and $1.42 in silver to the ton. Professor Eames spent last summer in the wild portion of Minnesota where gold has been discovered.

GENERAL BUTLER,

Will soon appear in print in reply to the reports [illegible] received at the hands of General Grant. His friends claim that he will show matters up in quite a different light and that his [illegible] and [illegible] in everything he has [illegible] will be proven. Butler [illegible] will control [illegible] a share in the work [illegible] between the [illegible] they expect to impress upon the public what they consider facts, viz: that they [illegible] as could be expected in the [illegible] and that the criticisms upon them by General Grant and a portion of the press were undeserved. [illegible] report is certain to make a [illegible] whereas, and though I have no [illegible] Butler, I feel authorized to state that the [illegible] has very strong supporters in high quarters and that he will be heavy to make [illegible] his defence [illegible] He has been really engaged as it has been stated in [illegible] examining the law [illegible] of Jefferson Davis for the past two months and it is probable that somewhat celebrated [illegible] will soon be brought to trial.

GENERAL GRANT'S REPORT

Has been greatly commended by the press, some of whom class him along with Cæsar, Napoleon and their celebrated military writers as well as [illegible] of the past. [illegible] have great belief in General Grant's military capacity and yet it is impossible for your correspondent to see a man who makes such speeches as the General can write such a report as the one just published. But aside from the [illegible] of belief, I have it from a well posted [illegible] that General Grant never wrote [illegible] of the [illegible] Adjutant General to several [illegible] during the absence from Washington of the letter on [illegible] or through the [illegible] Canada some months ago. The only [illegible] actually written by the Lieutenant General was [illegible] signature. The report has been in possession of the President and Secretary of War for several months. A very [illegible] who have [illegible] that the General [illegible] he 6 [illegible]

[illegible]

Is understood to be fitting [illegible] is [illegible] that the vessel is a fine fast steamer that she will be heavily armed and is likely to make quite a hole in the [illegible] commerce carried on by the subjects of Maximilian, to say nothing of any [illegible] strike at higher game. It is not probable that the authorities know anything at all the matter and the utmost efforts will be made to keep it from government ears, for fear of a sudden check to the undertaking.

RECONSTRUCTION

Is still the favorite theme of a large number of people. The latest exposition in that line is a letter from Hon. Thomas L. Clingman to the New York Times, arguing that there is no disloyalty in the State (North Carolina) but objecting to the test oath which no man he knows in that community can take without perjury. Governor Orr has been inaugurated in South Carolina and in his message takes the ground that secession and slavery have been killed by the result of the war and that it is the duty of all citizens to acquiesce in and cheerfully obey the requirements of the government. But all the Southerners are not like James L. Orr, and it is quite as well that the Congressmen from the rebel States be kept out in the cold for a while longer and that before it has been long in session such action should be taken as will clearly define the crime of treason and make appropriate provision for its punishment.

THE FOREIGN TRADE

of this city will probably never be diverted from this metropolis unless in the enterprise is shown by neighboring cities or at least better advantages [illegible] by shippers than at present. A great deal has been written and said about securing foreign trade for other cities still their spasmodic efforts seldom succeed to that extent as to warrant the establishment of steamship lines. The fact that the steamship Orizaba, from Boston, the Delaware, from Philadelphia, and the Hibernian, from Portland, are now in this harbor loading for European ports showing conclusively that those places from whence they have come to obtain cargoes, have not freight to supply even these fortnightly sailing steamers, while this city sends from its wharves weekly some two dozen large and fast steamships to Europe, besides another couple dozen full to their gunwales, with freight for Southern ports.

SUICIDES

are still frequent. But a few days ago one Alfred Frederick Keenan died from a powerful dose of laudanum, taken in consequence of unrequited love. He was a steady young man of 22 years with an impediment in his speech which caused him much vexation, and perhaps had something to do with his foolish act. Here is a letter he left behind:

"TUESDAY. Bella! Bella! Bella! Good by, good by. Oh! think of me when you pray at night—me, the poor suicide, that had only one hope or wish in this poor world and that was to see you happy. Oh! Bella! Bella! my last dying wish is that you will marry some one far better than I am, but oh! Bella, you will not forget me, perhaps when you lie down at night, and think of those who are near you, you will think of me—for oh! Bella, I loved you; and if it is permitted that the spirits of those departed may watch over the welfare of the dear ones in this world I will watch over you and perhaps we may meet in the better and purer life that is to come. I wish you to keep the gloves and the ring that you will find in this for my sake, and when you are happy in some other man's love, oh, breathe a pitying prayer for the poor, miserable suicide, whose only wish, whose only dying thought, was for your happiness. So, farewell! a long, a last farewell. The only wish I can express is that you will press one loving kiss on my brow when I am dead, no cold, worldly kiss but a kiss of sympathy for one who loved you. Good by! May all the blessed angels watch over and guard you. FRED.

(Oh! If I could only kiss you before I die!)

"P. S.—Perhaps what few clothes I have may pay for burying me. If not, pitch me into the street and let me be buried as I have lived, like a dog, but never forget that for four years you have had an English gentleman living in your house. FRED.

"P. S.—See that the note to Bella Scullion is delivered at once, for if it is not it will not be imaginary croaking birds that will be heard on the landing. FRED."

Another and a sadder case, is that of a young German girl in Hoboken, who having been accused of stealing five dollars, procured some Paris green which she swallowed and soon after died. She had neither father nor mother, home or friends save a brother in law, who did not treat her well. The evidence of her guilt is very meagre.

THE [illegible] CUSTOM HOUSE

Having recently been the scene of embezzlements to the amount of $60,000 by the late cashier, who decamped with the proceeds of his rascality, Col. W. R. Thomas, the collector, has paid the amount out of his private fortune, so that the Government loses nothing. Mr. Thomas says "he has been prompted to make payment by an anxious desire that the present Administration—with the good name of which his own is, to some extent, identified—should not be chargeable (in consequence of any circumstance whatever, which may have occurred in the Department assigned to his care) with having lost or squandered the public money." A rare instance of concern for the good name of the Government. Col. Thomas has clearly demonstrated that he ought to be retained in office.

PANIC AMONG THE DRESSMAKERS

Consternation has been produced among the dressmakers by the recent ruling of certain clauses of the internal revenue laws by which the dressmakers are charged with a tax of six per cent on all manufactured articles, as well as six per cent upon their cash receipts. This is not only oppressive, but it is destructive to the entire trade interest. Ladies will not pay so heavy a tax, for it exceeds the whole cost of making dresses and the consequence will be the ruin of hundreds and thousands of painstaking and industrious women. The injustice consists in the tax on manufactured articles, which have already paid a custom tax of ninety per cent. The matter will be brought before Congress at the present session, and it is hoped the evil will be remedied.

STEPHEN R. MALLORY

The rebel Secretary of War has written a long letter from Fort Lafayette to his friend in Florida in which he says: "In returning to the Union we are called upon to surrender much that awakened in the hearts of a gallant people a deep sense of humiliation. All feel it, none will disguise it. But we are prostrate and powerless. We drew the sword, and staked life, liberty and property upon it in a cause for which thousands of our purest, bravest and best cheerfully sacrificed their lives, a cause whose triumph we devotedly sought to secure but which the God of battle decided against us. There is no dishonor in frankly accepting the result and acknowledging defeat, while the obvious dictates of patriotism demand that we make all the sacrifices required for restoration to the Union, and that in again raising our eyes to its starry emblem, we recognize, in good faith, our sacred duty, come what may, to sustain its honor and rights.

"If I correctly comprehend the scope of the President's policy of reconstruction we are required to recognize in the Constitution of the State, the abolition and prohibition of slavery. We are to relieve the State from liability for all debts or obligations contracted on her account to aid in the revolution, and we are to admit negro testimony in our courts. From such indications as reach me of the tendency of the ruling sentiment in Congress it would seem that these provisions at least will be regarded as essential to reconstruction.

"The surrender of the asserted right of secession, a doctrine cherished by the South as derived from the history, theory and genius of the Federal compact, results from our defeat and reconstruction."

A NATIONAL CONVENTION OF MINERS

Is to be held in this city in a week or two, the design being to establish a union of action which it is hoped will lead to the increased strength and vigor of mining interests generally.

THE COINAGE

Of the Philadelphia Mint since its establishment in 1793 amounts to $423,682,317, of which $417,[illegible] was [illegible]. The receipts of gold and silver for the year ending June 30th last were $27,983,[illegible]. A new five cent nickel coin is urged by the Directors of the Mint.

THE UNION PACIFIC RAILWAY

Will be completed to Fort Riley, Western Kansas, by the 1st of June next. It will be open to Topeka on the 15th inst. Surveys of the road have been completed to Denver, by way of Smoky Hill Fork of the Kansas River, and a very favorable line found with large coal fields six feet thick and plenty of water.

[illegible] Subject. The pulmonary [illegible] consulting in a [illegible] of the [illegible] of the [illegible] and consequent [illegible] of the lungs. The [illegible] treatment [illegible] this defect with [illegible] a free and persistent use of [illegible] Pulmonary Syrup, which contains all of the requisite [illegible] the indications.

[illegible] Items.—At the recent installation of [illegible] No. 1, I. O. O. F. at Salem there was a large [illegible] of the fraternity from [illegible] and from the city. [illegible] affairs which were [illegible] in this [illegible]. The Portland delegation was accompanied by the Mechanics' Brass Band and the Oregon City delegation was accompanied by the Oregon City Band. The [illegible] installed were as follows: N. G., H. [illegible]; [illegible] Q. Wilson; [illegible] Treasurer, L. S. Skiff. Before taking their [illegible] for Portland the Mechanics' Brass Band serenaded a number of the citizens of the Capital city, among whom were some of the State officers. After having properly serenaded [illegible] the latter invited the [illegible] in for a lunch, but being told that they had just [illegible] for home, and were in a hurry, he then invited [illegible] to call on his old friend Dunn, in Portland, the [illegible] he should come down, when they should have [illegible] good to eat. The Statesman says 'some [illegible] good to eat' and the thermometer below zero [illegible] clearly understood by the boys. T. [illegible] M. F. [illegible] has resigned the secretaryship of the People's [illegible]portation Company and Mr. S. F. Church has [illegible] selected as his successor. Rev. A. F. Waller [illegible] the following in reference to a Cabinet of Natural [illegible], for the Willamette University and other topics [illegible]erest: "It is designed to prepare suitable rooms in [illegible] new building of this Institution for a Cabinet and [illegible]ary, and an invitation is hereby extended to the [illegible] of education everywhere to make contributions to [illegible] objects. For the Cabinet, preserved stuffed skins [illegible] and birds, preserved insects, reptiles, fish and [illegible] are wanted; Indian curiosities, anything that [illegible] render a Cabinet interesting or instructive; specimens of minerals, geological, etc. Also scientific and [illegible] books for the Library. Contributors will please [illegible]pany their names with their contributions. Several [illegible] have already made valuable donations of petrifactions, minerals and books for the objects contemplated. The school is in a prosperous state, but the new building is greatly needed for its better accommodation. [illegible] work on the building is progressing, and nothing [illegible] means is needed for its speedy completion. Many [illegible] to those who have so cheerfully and liberally contributed to the erection of this edifice; but the offer will [illegible] be continually extended to the friends of education [illegible] contributions to furnish it. This done, the agent will [illegible]fully acknowledge the names of all who have assisted [illegible] the enterprise, by preserving them in the archives of [illegible] University. Also congratulate the country on having [illegible] institution where our young people may qualify [illegible]selves for the responsibilities which will soon be [illegible] them in this young and rising State, and along this [illegible]stern slope of the Rocky Mountains."

[illegible] Racing.—Thus far the waters of Oregon [illegible] not been the scene of steamboat racing to any ex[illegible] and the lives of many have no doubt been spared on [illegible] account. The scenes of the Sacramento last year [illegible] be a sufficient check to the dangerous policy of [illegible] the speed of rival steamers at the risk of life. [illegible] is to be despised if it brings matters to this, [illegible] the company, or the officers of a company, who so [illegible] the safety of those under their charge for the [illegible] of racing one another should be held strictly accountable for their acts. On last Saturday the steamer [illegible] of the People's Transportation Company and [illegible] of the Willamette Steam Navigation Company [illegible] exciting race from Canemah to Salem, which is "noticed" by the Statesman: "The time was seven hours and five minutes, and the race so close [illegible] both boats claim the victory. We enter our protest [illegible] steamboat men endangering the lives of their [illegible] by senseless contests to test the relative superiority of the insignificant little dug outs they run on [illegible] river. The people don't care a fig which [illegible] from Canemah to Salem in five minutes the least, [illegible] they do care when their lives and freight are [illegible] by racing. If it continues, another special [illegible] of the Legislature, to make it as criminal in law [illegible], would be justifiable."

New Steamer.—Another new steamer has been [illegible] in our waters. Yesterday the Alert, of the [illegible] Steam Navigation Company, was duly [illegible] with her trial trip. She gave very good satisfaction. The Alert was built at Oswego, by Messrs. Mull[illegible] & Brown. She is 126 feet in length, 2[illegible] and 5 feet depth of hold. Her power is provided by two high-pressure engines, slight valve, of five [illegible] and 10½ inch cylinders. Her boiler is of the [illegible] class, 20 feet long, and 58 inches in diameter, [illegible] feet. The Alert is calculated, according to [illegible] "squeeze" measurement, to carry 177 tons of freight. [illegible] saloons, rooms, &c., are handsomely furnished, and [illegible] built in good shape by Charles F. Kent, ship joiner, [illegible] throughout is in every way strong and substantial. [illegible] We only observed one thing wanting to make her appear perfectly home like to us, that was the substitution of "Portland" for "San [illegible]" on the sides of her cylinders. With the [illegible] we have in this city we think all our own engines at least, ought to be made here, and of the [illegible] on the trial trip yesterday, thirteen were engineers, whom, we dare say, would agree, that as good [illegible] could be procured as cheaply here as the engines of the Alert. The new steamer will take her place [illegible] the trade to Oregon City on Monday, officered as [illegible]: Captain, James Strang; Purser, H. H. John[illegible]; Engineer, Edward Fellows; Chief Officer, Jerry [illegible].

[illegible] Among those desirous of taking passage [illegible] California by the steamship yesterday were some [illegible]ty-five persons who had arrived here on the steamer [illegible] about the time the Sierra Nevada should [illegible] sailed. After considerable "[illegible]" applying to [illegible] party and another, they finally learned they [illegible] not go by the Pacific, and were of course very [illegible]. The passengers claim, that having [illegible] their fare to the California Steamship Company, [illegible] are entitled to the privilege of going by the first [illegible] spending weeks of their time here, at considerable [illegible], but the agents, or those interested, hold [illegible] expected in the first, to go by the Sierra [illegible] they must avail themselves of the privilege to [illegible] that vessel.

[illegible] Shipment.—Considering that the upper [illegible] has so long been closed by ice, we must say [illegible] of treasure yesterday by the Pacific was [illegible]. We learned of $175,000 in private hands [illegible] appearing on the manifest as follows:

[illegible] Fargo & Co.	$520,000
[illegible] & Tilton	60,000
[illegible] Bros	18,000
[illegible] Bros	10,500
[illegible]	10,000
[illegible] parties, but not included in manifest	175,000
[illegible]	$804,500

[illegible]balling.—The sport of our boys is to pelt an unlucky Chinaman with snow balls, and right heartily [illegible] engage in the exercise yesterday. Two of these [illegible] natives of the flowery land, who were [illegible] at the steamer landing, were shamefully abused [illegible], and it was not until the officers of the [illegible] drove the boys away with clubs, threateningly, [illegible] the celestials were allowed to pursue their avocation. [illegible] Chinese were not alone the subjects to the [illegible] nearly everybody who had an arm to throw a [illegible] on it. When the steamer was leaving her [illegible] were satisfied and dissatisfied—as well as [illegible] attack to general hostilities, and the vessel [illegible] the most rigid storming. The roofs of [illegible] were relieved of the snow upon them, and [illegible] employed to do the work were not particular [illegible] the time they dropped each separate shovelfull [illegible]. The head of more than one pedestrian was [illegible] consequence.

[illegible]'s Court.—Before Justice Hoffman yesterday [illegible] Robinson was caused to appear on charge of whipping [illegible] wife, but the cause was discharged after due [illegible] ...Niel A. Gillespie, on complaint of [illegible], was tried on a charge of stealing a [illegible] discharge, and about $19.50 in money, two [illegible] ago. He was arrested after having displayed the [illegible] on the wharf and endeavoring to dispose of it. [illegible] will be rendered in the case today.

Accident to the Steamer Reliance.—The steamer [illegible]ance, of the People's Transportation Company became entangled in drift-wood, when near Rock Island, on [illegible] trip up the Willamette yesterday from Oregon City [illegible] had a bad hole stove through the plank of her hull [illegible] caused her to sink to her guards. The Fannie [illegible] was sent to her relief. The extent of the damage [illegible] not ascertained.

Hard on Cattle.—The snows will not only be severe [illegible] stock in this valley, but much more so east of the [illegible]. We were informed yesterday that Mr. [illegible] had lost 140 head of cattle at South Boise. Others [illegible] losers to considerable numbers, and there was not [illegible] country a sufficiency of hay to feed any great length [illegible]. This is particularly severe, and much to be regretted.

[illegible] East.—Peter Mackie, the popular chief officer [illegible] steamship Pacific, who has been running to Portland since 1850, visited us for the last time on the trip [illegible]day. As soon as he arrives at San Francisco [illegible] his intention to "knock off" and return home—to [illegible] States"—from which place he has long years been [illegible]. Our best wishes attend him, wherever he may [illegible] his anchor.

The Snow Storm.—Continued up to yesterday morning [illegible] it quit, leaving us with an honest [illegible] on the [illegible]. At noon the sun came out pleasantly [illegible] at [illegible] the atmosphere has [illegible]. Sleighing is not [illegible] by any means—too much mud.

[illegible]—Yreka was heard from yesterday. Mr. [illegible] Strong had just arrived there, en route [illegible], and [illegible] having passed through ten feet of snow on Scott's [illegible]. About eight inches of snow fell at Salem [illegible]day.

[illegible] for Repairs.—The steam ferry boat of the [illegible] McAdamized Road Company, at Milwaukie, has [illegible] withdrawn for repairs, and the ferry closed [illegible] notice.

[illegible], Messrs. [illegible] & Co.—The card of this new firm [illegible] in our columns this morning. They will attend [illegible] to the shipping, commission and forwarding bus[illegible].

[illegible].—Besides the treasure there was nothing of [illegible] consequence shipped per Pacific yesterday. [illegible] boxes of apples was the bulk of all produce [illegible].

[illegible].—Rev. D. C. Lippincott, A. M. will deliver [illegible] on next Sabbath morning, in the M. E. [illegible] on Romanism, and in the evening he will give [illegible] reasons for not becoming a Roman Catholic.

The Flag says that an Insurance Company is [illegible] to be started in San Francisco with a capital of $1,000,000 in United States 7 30 bonds. [illegible] will enable the company to pay a larger dividend than those companies who have to pay taxes [illegible] their capital.

[DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

DATES TO JANUARY 13.

General Officer Mustered Out—Convention of Collectors of Customs.

New York, Jan. 11.—The Times' Washington correspondent gives an outline of the Secretary of War disbanding the [illegible] army corps, [illegible] and a general order mustering out [illegible] officers which has produced considerable commotion among the decapitated Generals. Major-General [illegible] in the list expected to be [illegible] thus disposed of. Many whose names do not appear expected to see themselves in the list [illegible]. Another order of a like kind could [illegible] believed be issued without detriment to the interests of the country.

The convention of collectors and treasury agents of the frontier, which has been in session in Washington in the office of the Collector of Customs, has not concluded its labors. The result of its deliberations will be laid before Congress in a day or two in the form of a memorial, accompanied by bills for enactment into laws. It is intended to effectually prevent smuggling on the Canadian frontier.

Trial of Corbett who Transferred the Shenandoah.—Captain Corbett, who transferred the British ship Sea King to Waddell, who transformed her into the pirate Shenandoah, has been tried in London for a breach of the Foreign Enlistment act, and acquitted. The London Daily News thus summarizes the facts proved at the trial:

On the 8th of October the Sea King, a clipper built steamer of some 800 tons which had previously made one voyage to China, left the Thames ostensibly for Bombay. Her registered owner was a Mr. Richard Wright, and it appears that there was an entry on her register empowering the Captain to sell her for not less than £45,000. On the 18th of October she arrived off Madeira and signalled another vessel called the Laurel, which had cleared from Liverpool. The two vessels proceeded in company to an island called Desertas. That evening and part of the night were employed in shifting large and heavy packages from the Laurel to the Sea King, some of which bursting open, literally "let the cat out of the bag," for their contents were found to be shot, shell and ammunition. What took place on this occasion and on the following morning was the main question at issue, and, like most questions which turn on the exact expressions used at an exciting moment, it gave an opening for a direct conflict of testimony. All the witnesses concurred in stating that soon after they joined the Laurel, a "gentleman in gray," who turned out to be Capt. Waddell, came on board the Sea King. The morning after the boxes had been transhipped the crew, suspecting that something was wrong, began to grumble, and, according to the witnesses for the Crown, the defendant Captain Corbett, then ordered all hands to be called aft, announced the sale of the Sea King to Captain Waddell, and advised them to enlist under him. According to the witnesses for the defense Captain Corbett merely informed the men that the ship was sold, and the contract with them broken, offering them two months' wages if they chose to go on in the vessel, or a free passage home with himself in the Laurel if they chose to return. An attempt was made on the part of the Crown to represent the two month's wages as a bribe for taking service under Captain Waddell, but it was obviously capable of a more favorable construction, as the consideration for releasing Captain Corbett and his owners of their obligations under the articles which they had signed with the men. The real dispute was as to the words used by Captain Corbett to his crew, and although it was positively sworn that he did urge them to serve under the Confederate flag, we think the jury were fully justified in giving him the benefit of the doubt.

The Charleston News gives the following details of "the ruin" in South Carolina:

Of fifteen million dollars in bank stock, all is lost. Of five million dollars of bills in circulation, the market value is not more than twenty per cent. Of three insurance companies neither can continue business. Of twenty million dollars in railroads, no dividends can be expected. Of five thousand houses in Charleston, fifteen hundred have been burned, and others almost irreparably damaged. Of estates of decendants and minors, and of property in litigation, four-fifths are represented by Confederate securities, and are therefore valueless.

Of our many merchants, lately of large and unblemished credit, few have assets to pay the small debts against them at the beginning of the war. Of the many large and valuable estates in Beaufort district and the adjoining Islands, all have been abandoned, and many of them have been sold for taxes. Of the large cotton estates still farther from the seaboard, many have been desolated. Of the cotton on hand at the beginning, and raised during the war, (amounting in value to at least two hundred million dollars) the larger portion has been taken or destroyed. Of the stock, horses, cattle, hogs, farming implements, utensils and furniture, and silverware, all but an inconsiderable amount have been destroyed or taken.

Of the money in the hands of our citizens at the commencement of the war, or accruing from the sale of property, or the practice of professions or the payments of debts, all have been invested in securities of which nine tenths have no possible value. Of the debts uncollected, few are expected to be paid. Of the funds of churches, colleges, charitable institutions and societies, all, also, or nearly all, have been sunk. Of the lands of the State not held by the Government, little has any market value. Into this rightful gulf of ruin also has been swept the value of four hundred thousand slaves, estimated a few years since at two hundred million dollars. And thus therefore, of the four hundred million dollars worth of property in this State in 1860, little more than fifty millions now remains.

Negro Testimony in Tennessee.—Notwithstanding the announcement that the Legislature of Tennessee had conceded to the blacks of that State the right to testify in the Courts, it appears that this has not been granted. We can have a partial realization how greatly "demoralized" the Southern mind is on the negro question, when we reflect that the Legislature of Tennessee, though undoubtedly loyal, is still unwilling to do simple justice to a large part of her population. If Tennessee will not do it, what can be hoped for from the other States? A Nashville dispatch gives the following in regard to the matter of negro testimony:

The Legislature of Tennessee having refused to allow negro testimony to be taken in the courts of that State, General Fiske, Superintendent of the Freedmen's Bureau of this district, under special orders from the War Department, has issued an order which demands that all cases in which negro testimony is involved and which have heretofore been disposed of by municipal authority shall be brought before the court for adjudication.

In Alabama, the law makers are giving us an example of their very nice and exact appreciation of justice and of their wonderful powers of legal discrimination. A law has been enacted by the Legislature of that State which provides that intermarriages between whites and blacks shall be felonious, and punishable by imprisonment for the whites, and branding and whipping for the blacks. From this it would appear that the "constitutional Democracy" of Alabama are in the same deplorable situation as their brethren in Oregon. There is such danger that they will marry negroes that the thing has to be prohibited by law. As a further security against this great peril a heavier penalty is prescribed for negroes who transgress the law, than for white people. We do hope that under the guardianship of the law the chivalry may be able to resist the sable charms of Chloe and Dinah.

Lighthouses on the Pacific.—The estimated expenses for lighthouses on the Pacific coast for the coming year are: for supplies including five thousand gallons of oil at $4 per gallon, $[illegible]; for repairs and incidental expenses, $15,000; for salaries of forty one keepers at an average of $[illegible] per annum, $12,2[illegible]; for repairing and supplying losses of buoys, $10,000. An appropriation of $6,700 is asked for a beacon light on the landing at Santa Barbara.

Nearly every lighthouse on the Southern coast was smashed up or stolen during the rebellion by the "sovereign States" of the South. It will require $300,000 to replace them. Seeing that the "sovereign States" took the responsibility of demolishing these lights, they should be informed that they can have the privilege of restoring them.

The Registry Law of Maryland.—Chief Justice Bowie, of Maryland, in his decision sustaining the constitutionality of the registration law which excludes from voting those who cannot take the test oath presented in the new constitution says:

This constitution must be recognized as the organic law of the State. Its chief characteristics in contradistinction to the prior articles of the kind [illegible] the [illegible] of the fundamental principle [illegible] every citizen of the State owes paramount allegiance to the Constitution and Government of the United States [illegible]; the [illegible] of the State to [illegible] its incorporation with the right of suffrage and the abolition of involuntary servitude except for crime. It was designed to render the Union indissoluble by excluding from the polls and offices of the State all who actively engaged in the rebellion or gave it aid and comfort. If the prevalence of the doctrine of secession is to be accepted in extenuation of those thus engaged in the rebellion the soldiers of Stuart and Early, if the war had continued, might have claimed the right of suffrage unchallenged. The tenth section of article first of the federal constitution does not limit the power of a State to change or modify the qualification of voters. The right of a State to regulate the elective franchise is absolute and unqualified and is the foundation of States authority. To this power the right of a people to participate in the Legislature is subordinate. Citizenship and suffrage are not inseparable, the latter not being universal, inalienable right with which men are endowed by their Creator but as altogether conventional. It is a question of mere [illegible], to be arranged on such a basis as the majority may deem expedient with reference to the moral, physical and intellectual condition of the particular State. A legal voter is certainly he who has a right to vote but the law appoints a means whereby to decide such right. Limitations of this character are in operation in other States. The jealousy of federal influence excluded those in actual service from participating in elections. It would be an anomaly if the sworn enemies of the Government should be preferred to its friends in this State. The same power which disqualified free colored men in 1801, who prior to that year were entitled to vote, enabled the convention of 1864 to disqualify all who had been in armed hostility to the United States. Every government should contain in itself the means of its own preservation, and for that reason the regulation of the right of suffrage was reserved by the States.

The Lafayette Courier.—We have received the first number of the Courier, a quite diminutive and somewhat mild spoken "Democratic" paper published at Lafayette, Yamhill county. With the exception of a few original expressions such as "Butcher Stanton," "Beast Butler," etc., we do not see in it very many evidences of the high "ability" which characterizes some of our "Democratic" newspapers. Of course we do not mean to insinuate that the "Democracy" of the Courier is not of that pure kind which distinguishes the party it supports; but in the absence of the usual quantity of that "unlimited rhetoric" which commonly appears in journals of its class, we may be pardoned for thinking that the Courier does not promise to be a very efficient worker in the field of "Democratic" Journalism. If we may be permitted to use a military term, we will add that the Courier, in its disinclination to enter active service, is evidently malingering.

The Nation's Dead

Four hundred thousand men
The brave—the good—the true
In tangled wood—in mountain glen
On battle plain—in prison pen
[illegible]
Four hundred thousand of the brave
Have made our ransom [illegible] grave
For me and you!
Good friends, for me and you!

In many a fevered swamp
By many a [illegible]
In many [illegible]
The [illegible]
[illegible]
From western plain [illegible] tide
Are stretched the graves of those who died
For me and you
Good friends, for me and you!

On many a bloody plain,
Their ready swords they drew,
And poured their life blood like the rain,
A home—a heritage—to gain,
To gain for me and you!
Our brothers mustered by our side,
They marched and fought and bravely died
For me and you!
Good friends, for me and you!

Up many a fortress wall
They charged—those boys in blue—
Mid surging smoke and volleys fall
The bravest were the first to fall—
To fall for me and you!
The noble men—the nation's pride—
Four hundred thousand men have died
For me and you!
Good friends, for me and you!

In treason's prison hold
Their martyr spirits grew
To stature like the giant of old,
While and agonies untold,
They starved for me and you!
The good, the patient and the tried—
Four hundred thousand men have died
For me and you!
Good friends, for me and you!

A debt we ne'er can pay
To them is justly due,
And to the nation's latest day
Our children's children still will say:
"They died for me and you!
Four hundred thousand of the brave
Made this, our ransomed soil, their grave
For me and you!
Good friends, for me and you!"
—The Round Table

The British Government on a New Tack.—The intelligence from Europe which we publish elsewhere contains some curious, not to say startling, announcements. It seems that the British government has entirely changed its tactics with regard to this country, and that it has concluded to concede to us our interpretation of the Monroe doctrine, even to the surrender of Canada and her West India possessions, and allowing without grumbling the absorption of Mexico by the United States if the people desire it. The British journals have also changed their tone, and are suddenly and wonderfully friendly to this country, while their correspondents in the French capital are equally complaisant towards us when referring to the Mexican question.

What does all this sudden exhibition of friendliness towards the United States by the British mean? We may be mistaken, but we think it may be viewed as the opening ball of a rumpus between England and France, as a premonitary indication of a rupture of the entente cordiale between the two nations, and the endorsement of the policy of the United States in its hostility to that of Napoleon in Mexico. In the beginning of such a movement the first and best thing for Great Britain to do is to get rid of her Canadian dependencies. This we already see foreshadowed. If these possessions be separated from the home government they will naturally be absorbed by the United States or fall in line with the other States of the American Union, and as such be of immensely more benefit to the British nation than if they retain for centuries their present dependent positions. Relieved of these burdens, Great Britain can turn her attention to the expansion of her empire in Hindostan and throughout the East Indies, a portion of her realm far more precious than all her dependencies on this continent, including the newly discovered gold-fields of British Columbia.

We see in this new tack of the British government the adoption of a new policy not only toward the United States, but toward Napoleon and his programme to establish the Latin race on this continent, with the Mexican empire as the foundation. It will be remembered that when the Latin mouse in the Mexican meal bag became visible the British government declined to go with Napoleon in his movement to place Maximilian on the throne of Mexico. It is therefore natural for Great Britain to be friendly with Mexico when the Mexican complications begin to demonstrate that the interests of both countries are on this question, in a measure, identical. Events begin to look as if England were about to abandon Napoleon altogether to his fate in regard to Mexico. If this prove to be so an entire revolution in the sentiment of Europe about this country and Mexico may be anticipated, and a fixed and formidable opposition by England against Napoleon's attempt to galvanize the Latin race, which has been dead a thousand years and array it in hostility to the progress of the Anglo-Saxon race. In the meantime the British Government should continue its friendly tone toward the United States, for there is no knowing when the kindly offices of this Government may be needed in its behalf.—N. Y. Herald, Dec. 21.

Was Washington a Lieutenant-General?—A correspondent of an Eastern paper discusses this question:

Allow me to correct an historical error which a correspondent, speaking apparently in the language of Lieutenant-General Grant, has, as I believe, unintentionally committed. His statement is to the effect that Gen. Grant has been the only Lieutenant-General, full grade, in the United States Army, with the exception of George Washington, justly remarking that his predecessor, Gen. Scott, holds rank titular or through Brevet. Now if I have a proper remembrance of our national history, Washington [illegible] accepted the proffered honor of [illegible] generalship. While in the Continental service the official documents of Washington describe him as "His Excellency George Washington, Esq., General and Commander-in-Chief of the Forces." Upon resigning his commission, of course, that special position created anterior to the Constitution was vacated. The Constitution having provided that the "President should be 'Commander-in-Chief,'" etc., during his tenure of that office Washington had no need of a further authority to exercise unlimited military functions. Upon the accession of Mr. Adams, and in view of a threatened war with France, the then President being a civilian, and unwilling to assume control of our armies, solicited and obtained from Congress the creation of a lieutenant to represent him in the field. The honor thus created was tendered Washington, but as the war never occurred, that eminent soldier remained in the retirement of civil life.

As the founders of the American republic failed to contemplate the necessity for a prodigious standing army, they neglected provision for its proper organization on the scale the late rebellion rendered indispensable. According to military usage a commander of an army should be a full General, with the subordinate army corps beneath supervision of Lieutenant Generals, divisions under Major Generals, and brigades controlled by Brigadier-Generals, the rank and grade of the respective officers being determined from the number of men under their immediate command. The Southern Confederacy comprehended the necessity for creating these distinctive grades, and organized their army upon a numerical basis, while we preserved the incongruous system previously in vogue. Consequently, Lee, Johnson, Bragg and others were made Generals, with subordinates ranking in grade proportionate to the responsibility of their commanders. If our national army is to be maintained upon a war basis of 150,000 men, Congress will find it compulsory to reform our system, while at the same time it would be deemed advisable to augment the strength of regimental organizations. A colonel's command should be raised to a regiment of three battalions instead of one, as at present and the minimum of a battalion as well as of a squadron of cavalry should be determined as at least 1,000 strong. It is the officers who cost the State, not the privates.

The English Holders of Rebel Bonds.—One of the most damaging revelations made by the publication of the list of Englishmen interested in the rebel loan is the connection of Sir Frederick Pollock, Lord Chief Baron of the Exchequer with the speculation. He is one of the Judges who decided the Alexandra case and one of the law officers of the Crown upon whose judgment the British Government now pretends that it is justified in refusing compensation to the United States for the piracies of the Alabama, Shenandoah, and other English privateers. Baron Pollock is down for two hundred bonds, of what amount is not known. They varied in amount from two hundred and fifty to one thousand pounds each.

The people of Minnesota have voted down negro suffrage by a majority of 2,500, Wisconsin ditto by a majority of 8,000, Connecticut ditto by a majority of 1,000. Colorado by a vote of ten to one. The only State which has sustained negro suffrage is Iowa.

Population of Portland Maine.—According to a census just taken Portland has a population of 29,124, a gain in five years of 3,782. The females preponderate, numbering 15,814, to 13,690 males.

The wooden leg which was taken from Colonel Dahlgren, by the rebels at Richmond, has been found in possession of a rebel down in Albemarle county.

A New Process for Extracting Auriferous and Argentiferous [illegible]. [illegible] of the public is very [illegible] attention [illegible] claiming the precious metals from [illegible] then in [illegible] undergoing experiment. [illegible] these attempts, the most attention was Dr. Ayer's process for treating the [illegible] and silver bearing ores with heat and solutions of alkaline nitrates. At that time this process only existed and small specimens reduced in the laboratory, but so very considerable results were thus obtained that it was believed to [illegible] worked practically great returns would accrue to miners even [illegible] of the richest [illegible] and were [illegible] to advantage by the old process [illegible] savings would be made by the new.

The discovery, however, met the usual doubts and fears attending to a novelty, and, in fact, there had been so many failures for like purposes brought forward that unbelievers were encountered everywhere. It was asserted that however beautiful the process might be in theory, and in the laboratory yet it was not certain that ores could be thus practically treated in the mass. In order to silence forever such doubts, and to test the utility of the invention upon a working scale under the eye of practical miners the Company erected in this city furnaces for treating ores on a large scale, and at great cost imported gold bearing quartz ores from Nova Scotia by the cargo and are now reducing them with the most favorable results. Meanwhile, the value of this method becoming apparent, three different persons claimed priority of invention of the same process at the Patent Office, and contested the novelty of the invention of the patentee. Upon these claims evidence was taken, and after full investigation the validity of Dr. Ayer's patents was fully established by the Commissioners at Washington. The furnaces are simple in construction, and the chemicals are universally distributed so that there is no place where mines are worked that the furnaces and material cannot be economically obtained and constructed, thus saving the great cost of transportation of heavy mills and machinery to the mines. Heretofore miners have supplied themselves with machinery at very great cost of construction and transportation, from which, as a rule, the most moderate returns have not been realized by the owners.

By the new chemical process the disintegration of the rock is so complete that any ordinary iron or burr mill can reduce ore thus treated to the finest powder with much less power than is required to run stamps and the royal metals being freed from all impurities, are amalgamated by the simplest and least expensive machinery. Another peculiarity of this process is, that by separating the gold from the base metals, it is left free to be taken up by the mercury. It, too, is claimed that the quicksilver used in the process for collecting the fine grains of precious metals is not wasted, so that a saving is thus effected. So thorough have been the practical tests made, that it is believed not only will the individual interests of mine owners be greatly advanced, but the public will be benefited by the augmented yield of gold and silver that must follow the introduction of this process practically at the mines. Furnaces have been erected by the Company in New York and have been shown to a large number of practical miners and scientific gentlemen, with great satisfaction to them in the result obtained, and the furnaces are now working and open to the inspection of all interested in the development of our mineral wealth.—N. Y. Tribune.

A correspondent of the New York Tribune says: I heard one gentleman remark that he had recently met Gen. Lee, and had asked him whether, in his opinion, there had any change come over the minds of his soldiers.

"I can't answer for my soldiers," said the Professor, "I can answer for myself only. I have not changed my opinions. I thought that I was right, I think so still."

I have asked civil and military officers of various grades, whose duties bring them into constant intercourse with the people, whether, in their opinion, there is any true loyalty among the white population. The answer is uniformly: No! At the same time, my own inquiries in Virginia and similar testimony, leads me to believe, and justice prompts me to affirm, that there is nowhere any desire or intention to have another contest with the United States. They are perfectly satisfied that they did their very best, and—were "over powered."

The same correspondent says of the South Carolina Legislature:

"This body is now in session at Columbia. The Speaker of their House of Representatives, the Hon. A. P. Aldrich, was a member of the Constitutional Convention and voted against the ordinance repealing the Act of Secession, also against the amendment to the State Constitution abolishing Slavery. When about casting his vote on both occasions he delivered a most outspoken secession speech, which was heartily applauded by the members of the Convention and a large audience of spectators. There are not ten members of both branches of the Legislature who are not, to-day, thoroughly disloyal—as much so as when the rebel flag waved over their State House. Do you doubt it? Come and see."

THE STANDARD

AMERICAN BILLIARD TABLES!

AND COMBINATION CUSHIONS.

MESSRS. PHELAN & COLLENDER

WOULD RESPECTFULLY CALL THE ATTENTION of persons wanting Billiard Tables to the great superiority of the above tables, manufactured exclusively at their establishment.

At the Billiard Congress of 1863, composed of all the first-class players of America, it was unanimously resolved that tables of our manufacture should be used at all matches for the Championship, as the best and only reliable tables.

These Billiard Tables have received the unqualified approval of the best players and most competent judges, who have universally pronounced them unequaled for general excellence and durability.

Seven distinct patents for improvements in Billiard Tables have been granted to us by the United States Patent Office, and we have lately obtained a Patent from the French Government, for our improvement in Billiard Cushions.

We employ, in the construction of our tables, a variety of machinery specially made for the purpose, by means of which we are enabled to insure a scientific and mechanical accuracy hitherto unknown in Billiard manufacture.

Having a long experience and thorough knowledge of all the appliances of Billiards, and constantly on hand a large stock of the best and most thoroughly seasoned materials, we are prepared to furnish everything required in the Billiard line with unprecedented dispatch.

The eminent French Billiard Player, M. Berger, has published the following opinion:

"New York, 2d August, 1861.

"On the eve of leaving the United States, I am happy to declare to all amateurs of Billiards that after a tour of eleven months through the principal cities, I have been enabled to judge in a satisfactory manner of the superiority of the Billiard Tables manufactured by Phelan & Collender. The system of manufacturing is so superior, that I am happy to introduce their style of cushion into France. They have united to their manufacture of American Billiard Tables that of the French Tables, of remarkable excellence and beauty. For these reasons, I am happy to make this declaration.

"BERGER, CLAUDIUS,
Prof. of Billiards, Paris."

Parties ordering from us will find our prices as low as good work can possibly be made for. We sell first-class articles at a fair price, and will not make an inferior article at any price.

Orders by mail carefully and promptly executed. Illustrated Catalogues and Price Lists sent by mail. The "Billiard Cue," a Journal published in the interest of Billiards, and containing details of all novelties, a copious record of Billiard news, and everything of interest to amateurs of Billiards, sent free on application.

M. E. HUGHES,
730 Montgomery St., San Francisco, Cal., is our only authorized Agent on the Pacific coast, to whom all orders should be addressed.

The Remedy for Curing

CONSUMPTION, COUGHS, COLDS,

Asthma, Croup,

Diseases of the Throat, Bronchitis, Pains and Oppression of the Chest and Lungs, Difficult Breathing and all the Diseases of the Pulmonary Organs.

ITS ACTION IS EXPECTORANT, ALTERATIVE, SUDORIFIC SEDATIVE, DIAPHORETIC AND DIURETIC, which renders it one of the most valuable remedies known for curing diseases of the lungs. It excites expectoration, and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus; CHANGES THE SECRETIONS AND PURIFIES THE BLOOD, heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect, that it is WARRANTED TO BREAK UP THE MOST DISTRESSING COUGH IN A FEW HOURS' TIME, if not of too long standing. IT IS WARRANTED to give entire satisfaction even in the MOST CONFIRMED CASES OF CONSUMPTION! IT IS WARRANTED NOT to produce costiveness (which is the case with most remedies) or affect the head, as it contains no Opium in any form. IT IS WARRANTED TO BE PERFECTLY HARMLESS to the most delicate child, although it is an active and powerful remedy for restoring the system. THERE IS NO REAL NECESSITY FOR SO MANY DEATHS BY CONSUMPTION, when ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will prevent it if only taken in time.

The stooping, trembling victim of depression and debility becomes a new man, he stands erect, he moves with a firm step, his mind, which was previously sunk in gloom or an almost idiotic apathy, becomes bright and active, and he goes forth regenerated, conscious of new vigor—the medicine reaches the CONSTITUTION itself, and restores it to its normal condition.
